

Design Services for the Performing Arts

As a theatre equipment specialist, we pride ourselves in the fitting out of venues with Performing Arts Facilities. Our main line of service is to provide and install the equipment through to completion along with commissioning, demonstrations, manuals and ongoing maintenance.

We have technical representatives within the field who are able to visit clients all over the UK and Ireland to carry out initial surveys and discussions, along with preparing written quotations, all of which we offer completely free of charge and without obligation.

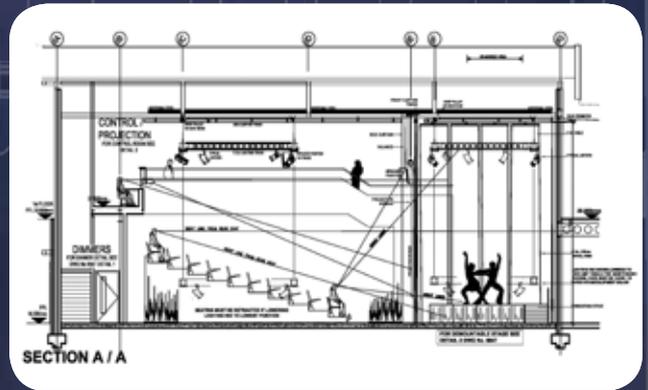

For extended advice, which may lead to extensive time and design work, we can also provide the following:

The success of a project stems from early design work, all of which necessitates the integration and need for mechanical and electrical services between the specialist and main building contractor. This is required as early as possible, to ensure that the requirements are included at the correct stage of the project.

With our long history and technical expertise, we are able to offer our clients a comprehensive design service, which extends from design meetings to CAD drawings for approval, followed by a full written technical specification that clearly outlines the design proposals. The scheme may be complex or simple, but early planning and co-ordination is always imperative, with the integration of stage engineering equipment, curtains, stage lighting, audio and sound related equipment, also demountable staging and retractable seating. Our services cover projects within the Education, Leisure, Theatre and Television sectors.

Such design work would normally form part of an early process, which is often in conjunction with architects, or consulting engineers, working with the design team to ensure that the infrastructure is in place, all of which often lead up to a tendering process or the procurement of selected products.

Such extended advice and design service is offered for a nominal fee, of which we would be pleased to provide information on during an initial introduction, all of which would be subject to the extent of work required.

Please note that our design fees are competitive and can often reflect on better pricing when it comes to submitting a formal quotation at the appropriate time.

We trust that you will find our offer of design services to be of interest, and please do not hesitate to contact us. As mentioned, our initial visits are without obligation or charge, therefore we would be pleased to visit you to discuss your project, whether with a view to design, or to provide proposals and a quotation.
